Qualtiere Enters Not Guilty Plea To Manslaughter

Bail in $10,000 Is Quickly Furnished For Italian Held in Connection With Green Shingle Inn Shooting—Other Cases.

Angelo Qualtiere, was arraigned in county court Monday afternoon on a charge of manslaughter, first degree, in connection with the shooting on July 8 at Green Shingle Inn on the Saugerties Road. During a fight in which four Americans and several Italians were involved Qualtiere's brother-in-law was shot. He died. Qualtiere was arrested and held pending a hearing on a charge of murder first degree but after an investigation held before Judge Fowler the degree of the crime was changed and he was released on $10,000 bail to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter.

The grand jury in attendance at the September term of county court handed up an indictment charging manslaughter, first degree and Qualtiere was arraigned in county court Monday. Frank W. Brooks appeared for him and entered a plea of not guilty and asked 20 days to make further motions and also asked that bail be fixed. Judge Fowler released Qualtiere under $10,000 bail which was quickly furnished by friends of the defendant.

According to the testimony given on the hearing four young men from Kingston stopped at the Green Shingle Inn, where "soft drinks" and sandwiches were served by Miss Williams. They ordered beer and while they were drinking it several Italians from East Kingston and Glens Falls came in. One of the Americans made remarks which were resented by some of the Italians and a fight followed. One of the four men was stationed on the porch of the place and as the Italians came out threw them off the porch.

According to the witnesses who claim to have seen the shooting and as they testified at the hearing, Qualtiere was seen to draw a gun and point it at the Van Elteren who was tossing the Italians over the rail from the porch. As he fired the gun Qualtiere's brother-in-law who was engaged with Van Elteren was swung into the line of fire and the bullet struck him. Van Elteren escaped and when the fight was over and the injured man taken to the hospital a call was sent to the sheriff and an investigation was made. While on their way to the scene State Troopers picked up Qualtiere and his companions who were walking toward home.

Qualtiere is a well liked, popular and respected man in his community and when bail was fixed it took but a moment to furnish it.

Plead Not Guilty.
George Latta, Jr., charged with assault, second degree, alleged to have been committed in the town of Lloyd on July 10 when it is alleged he assaulted a deputy sheriff, was arraigned and entered a plea of not guilty. Frank W. Brooks appeared for him and bail was fixed at $1,500 and furnished.

Thomas Higgins, charged with grand larceny, second degree, alleged to have been committed on May 14 in the city of Kingston when it is alleged he helped himself to a car on O'Neil street. Roscoe Ellsworth of Briarcliff, Canfield and Ellsworth appeared for him and entered a plea of not guilty. He asked for 20 days to answer to the indictment of charge plea. Bail was fixed at $500 and supplied.

Tony Saponi, alleged proprietor of the Spaghetti Inn, was arraigned on a charge of maintaining a disorderly house, keeping a house of ill fame and maintaining public nuisance in the town of Saugerties. Frank W. Brooks appeared for him and entered a plea of not guilty and asked for 20 days, time to make motions or change plea. Cash bail in the sum of $500 was continued.

Oscar Williams, Melvin Williams and Fred Williams indicted on a charge of burglary, third degree, alleged to have taken place on May 9 in the town of Kaesop all entered pleas of not guilty. Earl H. Houghaling appeared for them.

Brown Pardoned.
Frederick Brown, held to await action of the grand jury on a charge of larceny, second degree, released application with the court to be "reconciled by information." The application was granted and District Attorney Traver filed the information and Brown was arraigned. It alleged that Brown forged a check or $7.50 in the town of Marlborough on August 7 last and was held by Judge Martin for the grand jury. He entered a plea of guilty to the charge and the imposition of sentence was suspended until November 8 and he was paroled on his own recognizance to appear at 10 o'clock on that date.

Short Given Charge.
Walter L. Hart held by a police officer of Ellenville on a similar charge also asked that his case be speeded up by information filed with the court. Walter has been in jail most all week. It is alleged that he passed two checks one for $11.50 and another for $10.50. He entered pleas of guilty and said that he had no stick but would get a job and also good the money. He was also arraigned on November 8 at 10 o'clock and then to appear in court.

Supperhouse Found Not Guilty.
Joseph Ruggiero charged with larceny alleged to have taken from

Wadsworth Aims For Large Vote

To Overbalance Any Advantage Dry Wing of Party May Gain—Believes Temperance Is Only Solution In Prohibition Question.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 5 (AP)—The up-state New York campaign tour of James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Republican candidate for re-election to the United States Senate, is to be aimed directly at bringing out a large enough Republican vote in an admittedly strong Republican territory to overbalance any possible advantage which the dry wing of the party may gain in other districts.

The senator made this clear today as he started out on the second lap of his journey, through the farming territory of Onondaga and Oswego counties.

Having completed the first day of his trip with a night meeting here, at which he emphasized his belief that temperance was the only true solution to the intricate prohibition question, Senator Wadsworth planned to clinch the argument as he went further north. This territory goes Republican year after year, but the Republican campaign directors this year see a particular need to bring out every Republican voter.

The senator's stand on prohibition was made clear at the Auburn meeting last night with the definite assertion that he believes temperance—modification of the federal prohibition statutes—to be the only solution.

"Every sensible person must know," he said, "that we cannot tolerate present conditions much longer. We won't cure it by bringing back the saloon, and I am utterly opposed to any such proposal, and I am convinced that we cannot cure it by continuing indefinitely in our efforts to compel total abstinence. There must be some other way to establish temperance in this country."

After his trip through the northern counties, emphasizing at each stop the duty to the party of the county and local Republican committees in bringing the party's full strength to the polls, Senator Wadsworth will visit the southern counties. The schedule has not yet been completed, but it will not conflict, he said today, with the visits of Democratic campaigners to the same territory next week.

Today's schedule found the senator heading east through Skaneateles and Baldwinsville in Onondaga county and then north through Phoenix and Fulton in Oswego county. He will speak in Oswego at night.

Sunday Movies Up to Voters

Proposition to be Submitted at General Election Here on November 2—Question to be Voted on Whether Ordinance Shall be Adopted.

The question of whether Kingston is to have Sunday movies or not will be submitted to the voters at the general election to be held in Kingston on November 2. The proposition to be voted on at that time is, shall the common council pass an ordinance authorizing the exhibition of motion pictures in Kingston on Sundays after 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Some time ago Alderman Clare of the Eighth ward introduced an ordinance calling for Sunday movies in the city in the common council. It was referred to the laws and rules committee who later reported in favor of submitting the proposition to the qualified voters of the city.

Queen Marie and Party in Paris

Paris, Oct. 5 (AP)—Queen Marie of Rumania, arrived today on the Simplon-Orient express, accompanied by her daughter, Princess Ileana, and her son, Prince Nicholas, and a considerable suite.

The royal party went to a hotel where apartments had been reserved.

The queen seemingly was happy that she was on her way to visit the United States. The "first lady of the Balkans" was all smiles as she stepped from the private car.

The sunshine gleamed upon her golden bobbed hair as she graciously accepted courtesies and bouquets from those who had come to welcome her. She appeared a pretty picture as she stood on the platform extending her hand to be kissed by the bowing diplomats.

Princess Ileana, who is a slim young girl, is not unlike an American co-ed in appearance. Prince Nicholas, who wore a grey top coat and an English hat with the brim turned down in front, seemed more like a young Oxford or Cambridge student than a Balkan prince.

Today the queen expects to spend her time largely in the seclusion of her suite at the hotel resting from the long train journey from Bucharest. Her sister Princess Beatrice of Bourbon, who is now in London, will join the party shortly in Paris and assist Queen Marie in the shopping she intends to do before her trunks are put aboard the Leviathan.

STEAMSHIP WITH FIRE IN HOLD REACHES QUARANTINE.

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—The steamship Byron, of the National Greek Line, which sailed from Piraeus on September 17 with 397 passengers aboard, raced into the Quarantine station today with a fire raging in her hold. Apparently, her passengers and crew were uninjured.

In response to S. O. S. calls, received when she was off Ambrose Light, a city fire tug, two pilot boats and a police launch steamed down the bay to her assistance.

The fire tug William J. Gaynor reached the liner and began pumping water into her hold. No attempt was made to land the passengers, who were grouped on the upper decks.

The fire was brought under control at 9:30 a. m. The blaze originated in the cargo from an unknown cause.

The Byron, surrounded by a fleet of tugs, started for her Brooklyn pier. Clouds of black smoke belched from her hold.

Second Week of McPherson Trial

Los Angeles, Oct. 5 (AP)—Attempts to prove that Almee Temple McPherson occupied an ocean resort cottage leased by Kenneth G. Ormiston, her former radio operator, at Angelus Temple instead of a desert shack in northern Mexico, to which she claims she was carried by kidnappers, found attorneys in a scramble for new evidence as the third investigation of the evangelist's disappearance entered its second week today.

District Attorney Asa Keyes continued his effort to support his charges that Mrs. McPherson conspired to obstruct justice by assigning more detectives to search for Ormiston and by the revival of evidence assembled in the second investigation. Keyes also indicated that he would introduce more documentary evidence today in an effort to prove Ormiston visited the evangelist at a hotel here on the morning of May 18, a few hours before she disappeared.

The state expects to corroborate this evidence by calling as a witness Mrs. Fannie Northrop, chambermaid at the hotel where Ormiston is said to have registered under the name of George McIntyre. Evidence previously introduced showed the cottage at Carmel-by-the-Sea, where Keyes claims Mrs. McPherson spent the latter part of May, was leased by Ormiston under the name of McIntyre.

The first direct attack on Mrs. McPherson's story was made yesterday when Deputy District Attorney Joe Ryan from the witness stand declared that he "knew" it to be false. Ryan conducted an investigation of the district attorney's office when the pastor appeared at Douglas, Arizona last July with a dramatic recital of an escape from her abductors. He also investigated the "strange actions" of Ormiston, now a fugitive from justice.

Floods Menace Illinois Towns

Chicago, Oct. 5 (AP)—The retreat of havoc-working waters from the mid-western areas first hit by the cloudbursts that arrived with October, today carried the flood menace down the courses of the larger tributaries piling on toward the Mississippi.

Along the Kansas-Oklahoma state line the floods were receding, but lowlands in central Oklahoma, eastern Missouri and central and western Illinois, were threatened with further losses in life and property as the crests moved toward the gulf.

More homes were hastily abandoned as the water threat increased at Beardstown in west-central Illinois, where Illinois river levees gave way yesterday and let the stream into the town. Virtually all of the wall in front of Beardstown had disappeared.

The San Geron raged along nearby under the impetus of the excess drainage and the situation at Springfield was called beyond anything in the history of the state capital.

Rescue Workers Find 7 Bodies In Pit of Mine

One Miner After Desperate Struggle Falls Victim Nearing Safety—Explosion Believed to Have Taken at Least 28 Lives.

Rockwood, Tenn., Oct. 5 (AP)—The almost superhuman struggle of one miner to escape and his failure with safety but a hundred feet away was revealed today as rescue crews penetrated deep into the Roane Iron Company's coal mine here, where an explosion is believed to have taken a toll of at least 28 lives.

Apparently crawling more than 1,000 feet in an effort to reach an airhole, Clarence Stevenson fell victim to the deadly "after damp" a few minutes before he would have reached safety, said members of the rescue crew which found his body.

The rescue crew which emerged today after several hours of exploration of the Rodgers entry, where the men were trapped, found two other bodies in addition to that of Stevenson. None of these three was removed. Identification of the two bodies was impossible.

The first four bodies to be found had been removed to a morgue and identified. Mine officials believe at least 20 more bodies remain in the mine, including the three found early today.

Indications of fire in the explosion zone impeded rescue work. Rescue crews were forced to withdraw while "deadlocking" on the dip, where the men were trapped, was undertaken to assure safety of rescuers.

Anxious relatives—mothers with babies in their arms, waited at the mouth of the entry for the rescue workers to emerge. All of them brought the same discouraging reports—that no life could exist within a quarter or half mile of the scene of the blast.

Rescue parties worked in shifts throughout the night clearing a passage to the dip where the men were trapped. Their work was made more difficult by cave-ins. If any falls occurred in the vicinity of the explosion area, the recovery of the bodies of the men might require days or weeks, miners say.

The explosion occurred in one of the furthest reaches of the mine, nearly three miles from the mouth of the entry and approximately 800 feet under the mountain side.

Oust President Of University

Dr. Henry Suzzallo, President of University of Washington, Loses Two-Year Fight Between Supporters of His Program and Governor Hartley.

Seattle, Oct. 5 (AP)—Dr. Henry Suzzallo, for 11 years president of the University of Washington, was out of office today, the loser in a fight of two years' duration between supporters of Suzzallo's educational program and Governor Roland H. Hartley.

Regents of the University of Washington, a majority of whom are appointees of the governor, last night requested Suzzallo's resignation, effective today. He declined to quit, protesting that no reasons had been given for his dismissal and that he had no hearing. The regents then gave him a leave of absence and appointed David Thomson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts and dean of faculties, as acting president.

Four thousand of the school's 6,500 students held a torchlight procession through the campus last night chanting "strike, strike, strike!" They gathered in front of Suzzallo's campus home, where he asked them to refrain from demonstrations and to return to their classes today.

Hartley's ill feeling toward the educator is said to have started when Suzzallo, as chairman of the state council of defense during the World War, recommended an eight-hour day in Washington lumber camps. Hartley, a lumber owner, opposed the suggestion, which was adopted by the government. The university president also opposed a cut in state educational appropriations advocated by the governor.

DEATH OF COL. WILLIAMS "A CLEAN ACCIDENT"

San Francisco, Oct. 5 (AP)—The Examiner says a naval board of inquiry yesterday determined that the death of Colonel Alexander S. Williams, who plunged into San Francisco Bay last Thursday night in his automobile, was a "clean accident" and "in the line of duty."

The board, it was reported, on examination of the steering gear of Colonel Williams's automobile, found it was warped to such an extent that it would tend to pull the car to the left and this factor, together with the confusion of passing trains, caused the colonel to accidentally run his car into the bay.

Private funeral services will be held here today and the body will be sent to Arlington National Cemetery for burial.

CARS ON INSTALLMENTS.

According to the report of the Bureau of Public Roads 1,927,141 more motor-cars were registered in the first half of 1926 than in the same period last year, while the output of passenger cars and trucks in 1925 was greater by 670,025 than in 1924. It was estimated last March by the manager of the associated finance committees that two billion dollars out of the three billion dollars of total sales of new cars in 1925 (or fully two-thirds) were made on the installment basis, and that probably $1,500,000,000 of "automobile paper," representing loans to finance the sale of cars on that plan, was on the average outstanding at a given time.

Installment buying is not based on present ability to pay but on anticipation of future income, and when this is done on a vast scale the future is mortgaged for an immense sum, although the future is ever unknown. As regards the soundness of the plan from the point of view of either buyer or seller, we read that "the greater number of business men expressing themselves have deprecated its extension, and even the advocates of the plan in the motor-car industry have frankly expressed their doubt over what might be expected if the country were to be overtaken by formidable trade reaction with wide-spread business losses and unemployment, so that the double problem of incapacity to pay contracted installments and of inability to sell "repossessed cars" had suddenly to be faced."

ITALY AND THE FRENCH.

There is a reason for the surprising violence of Italian charges against France in connection with the last attempt on the life of Mussolini, and it is a reason that bodes ill for future peace between the two countries. Why should Mussolini's newspapers accuse France of harboring assassins and encouraging anti-Italian conspiracies merely because his last assailant, an Italian anarchist, resided in Nice until a short time ago? Mussolini and his editors must know that neither the French government nor the French people have been in any way responsible for the doings of Italian refugees in France, yet they seem to wish to bring about a quarrel on this flimsiest of pretexts.

The only conceivable explanation is that, after regaining part of their country's ancient but alienated territory in the Tyrol and Fiume, the Italian imperialists are eager to regain more and are casting longing eyes on the French Riviera which was originally a part of Italy. That beautiful strip of Mediterranean-bordered winter garden, running from Nice to Mentone and including both, has been handed back and forth several times, and no longer ago than 1860 it passed finally to France by treaty. Napoleon III exacting the cession as his price for giving aid in freeing northern Italy from the grip of Austria and for agreeing to Italian unification. This treaty was bitterly opposed by Italian patriots, including Garibaldi, and we need not wonder that an Italy dominated by Mussolini would like to see it disrupted and the lost provinces regained.

AN ABLE MAN.

Without fear of contradiction it can be said the Republican party never nominated an able man for governor of New York than Ogden L. Mills, and this is not denying that the Republican organization has chosen some of the ablest men in the country as its standard bearers in the Empire State. Mr. Mills knows his business and all the world knows his opponent can employ will be of no value in a discussion on state issues with the Republican candidate for the highest office within the gift of the people of New York.

The exceptional ability of Mr. Mills was not recently discovered. On the contrary, it was determined several years ago in the state senate, where in no time he was accepted as one of the most competent men in the entire chamber. He took the citizenship on a serious task, dug deep into state problems, acquired ample information relating to government, and it was hardly more than over night when he stood head and shoulders over many legislators who had been on the third floor of the Capitol for years. The late Senator Elton R. Brown, one of the giants of intellect in the legislature, in speaking of Mr. Mills, said: "He is the ablest man here."

In the debate at Buffalo, some time since between Mr. Mills and Governor Smith on the $100,000,000 bond issue for state improvements, Mr. Mills declared it was unwise to bond the state, increasing taxes, now back-breaking, and he contended there was sufficient money from current revenues to do the work on a pay-as-you-go basis. It was generally admitted that in this contest Governor Smith got the worst word-lashing of his political career. Then, to cap the climax, Comptroller Berry of New York city, a hand-picked Smith man, in a recent statement as regards New York city, almost unqualifiedly supported the Mills pay-as-you-go policy.

EARLY HEART SYMPTOMS.

Some one has well said that when a heart shows all the classical signs of disease, that is enlargement, irregular pulse, murmurs, swelling of the feet, and complete prostration, then there is little that can be done for either heart or patient.

And so the thought nowadays is to find out the exact condition, the exact power, the exact reserve of the heart, and then treat the patient accordingly.

The first symptoms of a failing or an ailing heart are not discovered by an examination of the heart itself. The heart may sound all right, no murmurs, no enlargement, no swelling of the feet and so forth, but the patient finds that he gets out of breath rather easily. His ordinary walk or walks seem to "wind" and tire him. He notices also that his heart beats faster on slight exertion, and seems to continue fast for a longer period than formerly. Thus his heart rate when sitting, which was formerly 80, went up to 120 after a stationary run of fifty steps, returning to 80 when sitting after two minutes, he now finds goes up to 148 after fifty steps and takes a half minute longer to return to normal. Perhaps there is also an extra beat occasionally to be heard.

And the cause of this beginning heart impairment may be hard to find. Sometimes it is due to lack of ordinary care of the body such as insufficient or improper food, indigestion, perhaps an emotional disturbance, too much mental or physical strain.

Finally those arch disturbers, tonsils or teeth, may quite readily be the cause of the trouble.

Therefore if you notice any little change in your "condition" as to tiredness, shortness of breath and so forth, get your family doctor to look for the cause.

That gas in the stomach can cause pressure against the floor of the chest, and hence against the heart itself is still true, but many cases showing oppression in the heart region are really due to some heart condition and not to this gas.

However, these early cases can all be either corrected, or the patient put on such a hygienic course of life that the heart should always be safe anyway.

Today's Story in New York History

By

Frederic A. Godcharles,

Chester A. Arthur, Twenty-First President of the United States, Was Born October 5, 1829.

Chester Alan Arthur, twenty-first President of the United States, was born in Fairfield, Franklin county, Vermont, October 5, 1829. His father, William Arthur, was an Irish clergyman, who was graduated from Belfast College, and came to the United States, where after studying law for a brief period, he became a Baptist minister. His mother was Malvina Stone.

Chester A. Arthur, the eldest of the family of three sons and six daughters, was graduated from Union College at eighteen, was principal of an academy in North Pownal, Vt., and in 1833 began the practice of law in New York city, where he argued several important legal cases in behalf of the colored people. Through these and other cases he became noted in his profession, and he was also prominent as a Republican politician.

In April, 1861, Governor E. D. Morgan made him quartermaster-general. To him, therefore, fell the task, at the very beginning of the Civil War, of organizing the subsistence, quartermaster, uniforming, equipping and arming the New York quota of soldiers.

In February, 1862, General Arthur was appointed inspector-general, and in May following he went to the front and thoroughly inspected the New York state troops. While there, in view of the expected advance on Richmond, he volunteered for duty on the staff of Major General Hunt. For the next decade he was successful and a widely known lawyer, and a leading Republican of the state. On November 20, 1871, he was appointed by President Grant collector of the Port of New York, which office he held for seven years.

In 1880 he was nominated for Vice President, chiefly to conciliate the Grant section of the Republicans, and at the defeat of their third-term project, and was elected with Garfield.

Mr. Arthur remained an active party leader in the patronage contest of New York, between the "Stalwarts" or Grant section led by Roscoe Conkling, and of which Vice President Arthur was the chief lieutenant, and the "Half Breeds," or more independent wing which Garfield was trying to build up.

Conkling soon resigned his seat in the Senate, declaring Garfield had broken his promises to him, and the Garfield party for the time was triumphant; but the assassination of President Garfield, shortly after re-election, ended the situation.

The open lamentations of the press at the prospect of the accession of so convinced a spoilsman as himself deeply hurt President Arthur, who felt it was misjudged, and determined on the most admirable revenge, that of disappointing their prophecies of evil.

He did so; not only was his term of office measurably free from the dominance of patronage, but he extended the civil service rules and kept faith with them. In other respects his administration was so excellent that he came near being the nominee of his party in 1884, when James G. Blaine defeated him on the fourth ballot, when Mr. Arthur received 207 of the 540 votes cast.

The most notable incident of President Arthur's administration was the appointment of a commission to revise the tariff, which, though composed of strong Protectionists, reported that the tariff should be reduced twenty per cent all around, a recommendation which Congress failed to heed. Several commercial treaties were passed however.

He vetoed a Chinese immigration bill as inconsistent with treaty obligations; favored the stringent laws passed against polygamy; managed Indian affairs wisely; took measures to increase the navy; and provided for a coast defense.

General Arthur's defeat for the nomination was not caused by any demerits of his own, still less by the desire to conciliate the Independents, but by the personal ambitions of Republican leaders, which, justly or unjustly, had aroused and exasperated the Republicans of New York state, causing the defeat of C. J. Folger for governor, and resulting in the nomination of Blaine. Arthur, although a close adherent of Conkling, supported Blaine.

Mr. Arthur was married October 23, 1852, to Ellen Lewis, daughter of Commander William Lewis Herndon. Mr. Arthur died January 12, 1886. They were the parents of three children. President Arthur died in New York city, November 18, 1886, and was buried in the Rural Cemetery, Albany, N. Y.

NIP'S IDEAS

Nip had been having a beautiful time at the beach. Nip was a fox terrier and he had had the honor of playing with a big, handsome, wise alreale all that morning.

Frits was the name of the big alreale and the latter had been swimming a great deal, whereas Nip was not very fond of swimming.

He could swim but he wasn't the one to rave about it.

As for the alreale, he swam races with his mistress and always won so easily and without any effort at all, even when he held back and tried not to go quickly.

But Nip had been playing with him on the beach and Frits had been so nice with the younger and smaller dog. He had not been rough and yet he had played so that Nip had felt he was having a wonderful time with the big dog, and he had not felt that the big dog was above him in the least.

Then Nip had run races in the sand and had played and jumped about, spoken to perfect strangers in his cordial little way, jumped up at them and even kissed some of them as he greeted them.

After the morning at the beach was over and they had gone home to a most delicious meal Nip took a nap. But when he awoke he thought he would like to chew a little bit and began to chew on a pillow.

Now Nip had a doll, a funny old doll which had always belonged to him and which was for him to chew. So whenever he started chewing anything else a member of the family came rushing to Nip and saying:

"No! No! Naughty Nip. Chew your doll."

Then they would give him his doll and Nip knew that he was supposed to chew that but nothing else. He understood a great deal.

He was just as friendly and nice when the family came back after they had left him alone and did not act "naughty" at all.

"No! No! No!"

Of course, often he was badly disappointed when they went off and left him and he would howl how he wanted to go, and he would look so eager and so pleading.

But just when they came back he had quite, quite forgiven them. He showed no touchy manner at all. Now did he act anything but forgiving.

Still there was one thing Nip could not understand. You see, he liked to play and to be so companionable. He liked to go everywhere and he behaved well when he was taken out.

But he did not care about doing tricks and he didn't see just why he should.

There was one trick that was just too silly for words. He wondered why they wanted him to do it.

They wanted him to stand on his hind legs.

Now he could jump up and stand that way for a second or two but to stand any longer was too absurd.

In the first place, people expected of dogs what they couldn't or wouldn't do themselves.

Nip had noticed that people never asked each other to stand up on one leg and to stay that way for quite a little while.

When some one gave some one else a candy, for example, they didn't expect the person receiving the candy to go around standing on one leg.

And that was no more foolish than to expect a dog to stand on two. Half the number of his legs amounted to one, just as half the number of a person's amounted to one.

So Nip's idea was that it was a very foolish trick and he didn't care about doing it.

After lunch was over he and his mistress went to make a run to the beach for both of them, but both of them to come back at 2. They always did about 8 going fairly but each made a run for it to get there first. Nip used to sit with his head on a red pillow and his right hind leg tucked up under his chin. But he was a higher dog than his mistress and when he heard his mistress, moving his head about, watching, very much.

But oh, that was a silly trick, that of standing on two legs. Nip certainly had his own ideas about that!

Croquette Leaf.—Take one and one-half pounds of meat—pork and beef mixed; one good-sized onion chopped, salt, pepper and one cupful of cooked oatmeal; make into a loaf, adding a cupful of tomato. Place in a baking pan and pour over the loaf another cupful of tomato and one-half of a cupful of onion. Roast, basting often. Thicken the gravy, serve with the meat. Bake one-half hour in a moderate oven.

Martha MartinTHE GARDEN FLOWERS

THE flowers from the garden had been sent in a box to the city. Some one in the city who was very fond of this particular garden had received the box.

And after one box had come, many others followed along, for the first box was sent when the first flowers came out in the spring, and they followed one right after the other after that.

And oh, how the flowers from the garden did enjoy their reception when they arrived.

They were greeted so delightfully.

"You dear pale lavender tulips," the lady said as she received the flowers

"You Dear, Pale Lavender Tulips," the Lady Said.

from the garden, "how beautiful you are. You are just the color of orchids."

"And here are the lovely pink and red and yellow tulips—and here is an orange-colored one!"

"Here are the dear white lilacs and their pretty, soft green leaves, and, dear me, dear me, how even the very twigs smell so sweetly of the garden."

And then the lady saw some ferns in the bottom of the box, and as she saw that the ferns were so new that they had scarcely uncurled themselves, she almost cried.

"Why, ferns," she said, "I grew you when I was a little girl. And your sweet fern fragrance is so like that dark, cool corner of the garden where I put you that it almost makes me cry. Happiness often makes one want to cry, ferns," she said.

And the ferns thought it was lovely of her to weep a tear or two or three, as she did, and, too, she was homesick then, just a little, for that garden spot where it was so cool and where she had planted the ferns.

Of course the plants in the house said they weren't thought so much of now as during the winter time when there were no flowers at all.

But still they couldn't complain, for on all the windy days they were still put out of the window and could drink the lovely refreshing rain water.

And Creeping Charlie grew more and more all the time, for he was so anxious to have a look at everything that he spread himself this way and that way.

The garden flowers were very much pleased, for when they first arrived they were afraid it was going to be too hot for them in the city home where there seemed to be so much heat, as in the city people still thought it was too cool.

But the garden flowers noticed the windows were quickly opened after they arrived and that the heat was turned off, which was surely an honor to the garden flowers.

It let them know how much they were thought of by the lady who received them.

"Oh, garden flowers," she said to them, "how well I remember the garden parade of flowers, beginning in the spring and lasting all through the summer into the fall."

"And how we used to cover up the flowers in the fall with newspapers, and so the newspapers would not blow away we fastened them down at the corners with pebbles from the garden gravel path."

"Yes, the pebbles even used to work for the garden."

"We all loved the garden, and we always will love the garden."

"And even if I cannot see the garden now all the time, I can see it once in a while, and the flowers will be sent to me when I can't go to them."

"You travel so beautifully, dear flowers, too, you keep so fresh, and yet your journey is a long one."

And the flowers whispered in their sweet flower way: "We would not fade for anything, for the one who sends us loves us, and the one who receives us loves us, and we want her to see us as we are!"

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS
By H. IRVING KINGCURE FOR COUGHING

WHEN a person is taken with a fit of coughing and strangling—such, for instance as when a piece of food "goes down the wrong way"—he or she can be at once relieved by putting a pair of scissors down inside the clothing next to the skin. This piece of emergency folk-medicine is practiced both in this country and Europe and the prescription is one of double potency, for it is compounded of two ingredients, magic and spirits. In the first place a pair of scissors being made of steel—which is the same thing as iron—are sure to scare away the evil spirit which is trying to strangle or choke the patient. Witches and other evil spirits abhor iron—there is nothing the evil spirits fear more. They have abhorred it and feared it since iron was first worked from the ore. That is the spiritism part of the prescription. The magic part is contained in the fact that scissors cut. They cut actually and so can cut sympathetically.

As Told by Irvin S. Cobb*THE PREDICTION

AT A luncheon in New York of the Catholic Actors' guild Rev. John Talbot Smith told a story which had an especial appeal to his audience, most of whom were communicants of the same faith of which he is a distinguished clergyman. Father Smith said that a young woman in the confessional confessed that she was afraid she had been spending some of her money foolishly.

"Spending your money foolishly calls for penance," said the priest sternly. "How have you been spending yours?"

"Well, father, I went to a fortune teller," admitted the penitent.

"Oh, ho, so you went to a fortune teller, eh? Well, that's wrong to begin with. In the first place, professional fortune tellers are most of them frauds, and in the second place, they pretend to deal with the supernatural. And what did you do for this fortune teller?"

"I gave him two dollars, father."

"Worse, and worse—wasting your hard-earned wages on a faker. And in exchange for your two dollars what did he do for you?"

"He told me a pack of lies, father, about my past and my future."

"What did he say about your past?"

"Only a pack of lies, as I was just after telling you."

"And what did he tell you about your future?"

"He said, father, I would shortly be going on a long, hard journey."

"Well," said the priest reflectively, "he may have lied to you about your past, but when he predicted that you would be going on a long, hard journey in the near future he was not far wrong, after all. You'll do the station of the cross twelve times!"

Child meals should be planned for growth

Do you know the growth foods?

Meals for children should be planned to include plenty of the growth foods, child health specialists say. Too often children get lots of food—but not enough of the right kind.

Normal growth, which usually means normal play, normal sleep and freedom from nervous troubles—can take place only when plenty of the elements necessary for growth are adequately provided.

Among the most important of the "health foods," rich in many necessary elements, is oatmeal with milk. A cup of Mother's Oats, with a cup of milk, furnishes 23% of the protein needed by a growing child in a day.

Vitamins, too, and minerals which are indispensable to sound, perfect development, are liberally supplied. And the tender bran covering of the oat, so good for little children.

For Mother's Oats is the natural whole grain. Fifty years of experience have taught its careful millers how to pick the cream of the oat crop—then how to prepare it without losing any of its natural food value.

You will notice at once how smoothly it cooks, as a result of this extra-careful preparation.

MANY THINGS COST LESS.

Babson Park, Mass. Oct. 5 (Special).—The farmer is not getting now the prices he used to for his products. But he is not alone in his misery. All things—commodities—are not products of the farm, but the average commodity has dropped sharply in price since the high point in 1920.

In fact, prices seem to be getting back to pre-war days although they are still quite a bit above what we had to pay back in 1915 and especially back in 1905.

STUDENT SUES PROFESSOR FOR RE-WRITING BOOK

Chicago, Oct. 5 (AP).—Professor Adolph J. Snow, lecturer in psychology at Northwestern University, has been sued for $350 by a student claiming the money was promised him for re-writing one of the professor's books.

The suit was filed by Philip Jordan, senior prominent on the campus, who said the volume was originally 600 pages long and was finding little popularity. At the request of Professor Snow he condensed the book to 300 pages and made other changes last spring. Jordan set out, claiming that the $350 was refused when he declined to do additional re-writing.

How to Care For Varicose or Swollen Veins

Don't Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or because the best advice that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Nourse's Emerald Oil of it.

(full strength) and apply on direct night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that even Phleb is quickly relieved. Wm. F. Doherty's cells late of it.

"Peaches" Back Home to Mother

Girl Bride of Edward W. Browning Is Separated From Millionaire Husband—Temporary Says Secretary.

New York, Oct. 3 (AP).—"Peaches" Browning has "gone home to mother" leaving behind her a millionaire husband, 35 years her senior, and "a lot of dreams that never came true."

Edward W. Browning, 51-year-old realty operator, declared that separation from his 16-year-old bride of six months, is only temporary. She left him Sunday.

"Mrs. Browning has gone away for a few days with her mother," he said in a statement given out by his secretary. "The parting is temporary. There has been no quarrel. We have agreed to separate for a few days, but there is nothing definite about our being apart. We've given up our apartment at Kew Gardens for the time being."

Browning has moved into a New York hotel for a few days, but refused to name the hotel.

The New York Herald-Tribune says Mrs. Browning's mother took her to stay with friends in New Jersey because she feared publicity.

"The reason for our separation will have to come from Mr. Browning," Peaches declared. "It is for him to say also how long it shall be."

Later Mrs. Katherine Heenan, mother of the girl bride, was asked if her daughter had "given up the magnificent Long Island home Mr. Browning bought for her."

"Oh, that is one of the things that never came true," said Mrs. Heenan. "That was good on paper and in the papers. I guess it was somebody's dream. There were lots of things that never happened and the palace on Long Island was just one of them."
